

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. CALENDAR AND TIDE TABLES.

BY THOMAS TENNENT.

The calculations are made for apparent time. The Tide Tables are computed from the Tables of the United States Coast Survey. We append the following observations in regard to the TIDES OF THE PACIFIC COAST.

On the Pacific coast there is, as a general rule, one large and one small tide during each day; the height of two successive high-waters occurring one A. M., the other P. M. of the same twenty-four hours, and the intervals from the next preceding transit of the moon are very different. The inequalities depend upon the moon's declination; they disappear near the time of the moon's declination, being nothing, and are greatest about the time of its being greatest. The inequalities for low water are not the same as for high, though they disappear and have the greatest value at nearly the same times.

In Puget Sound the inequalities for the interval of high water and for the height of low water follow this rule, but those for the interval of low water and height of high water disappear about one day before the moon's declination is greatest, and are greatest about four or five days before the greatest declination.

When the moon's declination is north, the highest of the two tides of the twenty-four hours occurs at San Francisco about eleven and one-half hours after the moon's southing, (transit) and when the declination is south, the lowest of the two high tides occurs about that interval. The lowest of the two low waters of the day is the one which follows next the highest high water.

To obtain the times of high or low water for Monterey, South Farallon, Mare Island, Benicia, Ravenswood and Bodega, find the time for San Francisco, then subtract 1 h. 44 m. for Monterey, 1 h. 29 m. for the South Farallon, and 49 m. for Bodega; and add 34 m. for Mare Island, 1 h. 4 m. for Benicia, and 30 m. for Ravenswood.

For Humboldt Bay, Port Orford, and Neeah Bay, find the time for Astoria, then subtract 40 m. for Humboldt Bay, 1 h. 16 m. for Port Orford, and 9 m. for Neeah Bay.

For Steilacoom and Semiahmoo Bay, find the time for Port Townsend, and add to it 57 m. for Steilacoom, and 1 hour for Semiahmoo. The approximation will only be a rough one for Steilacoom.

LEAP YEAR.—“Every year whose number is not divisible by 4 without a remainder, consists of 365 days; every year which is so divisible, but is not divisible by 100, of 366; every year divisible by 100 but not by 400, again of 365; and every year divisible by 400, of 366.”

FEBRUARY.

February received its name from Februalia, a feast of purification held by the Romans in this month, by which the people were supposed to be cleansed from the sins of the whole year.

ON THE ART OF WAR.

BY H. W. HALLECK.

AUTHOR OF "ELEMENTS OF MILITARY ART AND SCIENCE," "INTERNATIONAL LAW AND THE LAWS OF WAR," ETC.

FOREIGNERS have often asserted that, as a military power, the Government of the United States is exceedingly weak; and that the first great war in which we engaged would demonstrate this weakness. Our people have resented these assertions with considerable warmth; and to prove their want of foundation, they have referred to our little army of twelve or fifteen thousand men, to our military academy at West Point, and to the military spirit displayed by our militia; and, as evidence of our capacity to organize an efficient army in case of necessity, to the results of the War of 1812, and the Mexican War of 1846.

In reply to all this, European cavillers say they admit that our regular army is well instructed and well disciplined, but that it is too small to be of much avail in any great war; and they also point to the fact that the privates are mostly of foreign birth, which, they say, is good proof that the mass of our native population is wanting in military spirit. They admit that the West Point Academy is equal to the best military schools of Europe, and that it annually furnishes a small body of well trained and well educated officers; but they contend that the usefulness of this school is almost entirely destroyed by the system of appointment to, and promotion in, our army—such appointments and promotions being made almost exclusively from political considerations, and without regard to military qualifications. In proof of this, they refer to our army lists, and show that graduates of West Point have much less chance of preferment than noisy, pot-house politicians, who are ignorant of the first elements of military science. With regard to our militia, they say that, although good and brave men, they are without military experience or discipline, and, although valuable as an auxiliary force to man our fortifications and to repel an invasion, they would be of very little use in the open field and in the face of veteran troops. With regard to the War of 1812 with England, they say that the first campaigns proved beyond dispute our want of military efficiency, and that it was only in the last year of the war, and after a dearly bought experience of our faulty military organization, that we were able to cope with the small force which Great Britain, engaged in her mighty European contests with Napoleon, was able to send against us ; for the Mexican War, they say we contended with troops still less instructed and disciplined than our own.

Whatever we may think of the justness of these foreign criticisms, we must admit that we are not, in the strict sense of that word, a military people ; and that the military art has received very little attention in this country, as compared with the nations of Europe. And this is by no means strange. More than three quarters of a century have elapsed since the acknowledgment of our national independence, and during all that time, except the War of 1812 with England, we have enjoyed an almost uninterrupted peace—for our Indian border wars and our short conflict with the weak and demoralized Republic of Mexico were too limited and local to produce much effect upon the country generally—consequently, the attention of our people, for nearly a century, has been directed almost exclusively to other pursuits than that of arms ; and they are better acquainted with any other science than that of war. Indeed, politicians have generally assured us that we need no army ; and that our brave but uninstructed militia is sufficient for all purposes for which a military force will ever be required by our Government. The present war is opening our eyes to this error, and the disaster of Bull Run has taught us that mere courage and numbers, without instruction or discipline, or competent officers to command, are not likely very soon to restore the authority of the Government, and the peace of the country.

War is the most comprehensive and difficult to be understood of all the sciences, for it embraces nearly every branch of human learning. Hence it is, that while nearly every country furnishes good chemists, botanists, geologists, theologians, jurists and statesmen, but very few skillful generals have been found in any age. And yet in our country it seems to be thought that anybody will do for a general; and a politician or pettifogger has only to put on epaulettes, and exchange his stump speeches or briefs for a sword, in order to qualify him to lead armies into the field and to direct the difficult and complicated operations of a campaign, seige or battle! While we must admire the brazen impudence of the individuals who make these sudden and wonderful transformations, it is difficult to understand why the Government, which is supposed to seek victories rather than defeats, should appoint such men to command our armies, and why a people, who are supposed to value their lives and reputation, should tolerate them! If mere politicians, who never drilled a company or read a military book, are to command our armies, why not make judges and district attorneys of masons and carpenters who never read a law book or wrote a brief? If it only requires a piece of parchment to convert a politician into a general, certainly the same magic process will transform a blacksmith into a judge, or a butcher into a surgeon!

Washington, in his last Annual Message, Dec. 7th, 1796, in urging upon Congress the importance of military instruction, used the following words: "Whatever argument may be drawn from particular examples superficially viewed, a thorough examination of the subject will evince that the art of war is both comprehensive and complicated; that it demands much previous study; and that the possession of it, in its most improved and perfect state, is always of great moment to the security of a nation." Had we given heed to Washington's Farewell Address, the present rebellion would never have occurred; and had the Federal Government listened to the advice contained in the foregoing extract from his last Annual Message, it would not now be lamenting the disasters of Great Bethel and Bull Run.

The people are beginning to awaken to the importance of military instruction; and they ask of the Government that it cease appointing politicians, ignorant of military science, to lead our armies. Men who pay their money and peril their lives in support of the war for the Union, have had enough of "mustang" generals; they now demand that these be replaced by men of military education and experience. Moreover, the people themselves are beginning to learn something of war, or at least, to desire to learn, for there is just now an unprecedented demand for military books. In order to assist the popular understanding of this subject, we propose to give a brief

SYNOPSIS OF THE MILITARY ART.

WAR has been defined, the art of organizing and moving military forces, and is usually divided into four distinct branches: Strategy, Engineering, Logistics and Tactics.

Strategy is the art of directing masses upon decisive points; or, in the words of Bulow, it embraces "the hostile movements of two armies, made beyond the view of each other, or—if it be preferred—beyond the effect of cannon."

Engineering embraces the disposition of material obstacles to resist an attack, and the means to be used to overcome these obstacles in making an attack.

Logistics embraces the means of transportation and supply.

Tactics is the art of bringing troops into action, or of moving them in the presence of an enemy—that is, within his view, and within reach of his artillery.

We will illustrate these definitions by reference to the present war. To determine the general plan of campaign—that is, the points at which troops are to be assembled, as at Fortress Monroe, Arlington, the Ohio River, Cairo, St. Louis, &c., and the lines upon which they are to move against the enemy—belongs to strategy. The location and construction of fortifications, batteries, military bridges, the reconnaissance of the enemy's works, position and numbers, and his lines of communication, belong to engineering. The providing of means for supplying and moving the troops so collected, belongs to logistics. And the manner of bringing them into action, or of maneuvering them on the field of battle, belongs to tactics. Thus, the sending of Patterson's column against Martinsburg and Winchester, while McDowell moved on Manassas Junction, was a matter of strategy. So also the concentration of the forces of Johnson and Beauregard at Bull Run was a strategic movement. But the dispositions made of the troops on both sides for this battle, and the maneuvers made during this engagement, were all matters belonging to tactics. The establishment of batteries, and other means to strengthen his position, devised by Beauregard, and the examination of these defenses, and the adoption of means for overcoming these obstacles by McDowell, were matters belonging to engineering. And the means of supplying these armies, and of transporting these supplies, belonged to logistics.

Having pointed out what is understood by strategy, we will add a few of the general rules which belong to that branch of military art. In selecting a base of operations, it is stated by the best authorities, that troops should never be placed upon the circumference of a circle the center of which is occupied by an enemy; for in that case the enemy can select his point of attack or defense, and, by concentrating his forces on that point, can successfully resist or attack the forces brought against him. Thus in the present campaign, the Federal troops were assembled at Fortress Monroe, Arlington, Martinsburg, Grafton, Parkersburg, Cincinnati and Cairo, while the confederate forces were concentrated on Lynchburg, Richmond and Manassas Junction—one party on the circumference, and the other concentrated near the center.

Again, in selecting lines of operation, it is said that troops should never be moved on exterior lines, unless the forces on each line are superior to the combined forces of the enemy. The reason of this rule is obvious: by moving on exterior lines, we permit the enemy to attack either of our lines with his combined forces, the other being outside, and too distant to render any assistance to the line attacked. On the contrary, by moving on interior lines, our forces, being nearer together than those of the enemy, may be readily concentrated on any weak point which may be presented. It matters little whether our lines be single or double, provided we can unite our forces sooner than the enemy can unite his ; the great object being to concentrate upon the decisive point a larger force than the enemy can bring to resist our attack. This is the great secret, if secret it can be called, of all strategic maneuvers.

History furnishes us with numerous examples of both interior and exterior lines of operation. In 1777, Burgoyne moved on exterior lines against the army of Gates. In 1814, the army of Silesia and the grand Austro-Russian army pursued exterior lines, leaving Napoleon to operate with his whole force upon either one or the other, as circumstances might require. In the Italian campaigns of 1796 and 1797, nearly all of Napoleon's movements were interior and central ; and he was thus enabled, with a small force, to pierce and destroy the large armies which Austria sent against him. The same may be said of his campaigns of 1805 and 1809, against Austria ; of 1806 and 1807, against Russia ; and of 1808, against Spain. In 1815, with an army of only 120,000 men, against an allied force of 200,000, by his central advance on Charleroi and Ligny, he gained a most decisive advantage over the enemy—an advantage lost by the eccentric movement of Grouchy, which left Wellington and Blucher on interior lines, and enabled them to concentrate their combined forces on the field of Waterloo and overthrow the army of Napoleon. The maneuvers of the Archduke Charles between the armies of Moreau and Jourdon, in 1796, furnish a fine example of interior and central operations. To apply this maxim of strategy to the present campaign—Patterson's and McDowell's columns moved on exterior lines, leaving the armies of Johnson and Beauregard between them ; they concentrated their forces at Bull Run and defeated McDowell's army, and might have done the same thing to the army of Patterson. Had the latter crossed the Potomac at Leesburg, he would have threatened Johnson's communications much more effectually than at Martinsburg ; and at the same time would have been near enough to McDowell to assist him or to receive assistance from him, as circumstances might have required. Johnson must then have abandoned Harper's Ferry and Winchester and united with Beauregard, or the latter must have moved to the assistance of the former; for had they remained separate, both Patterson and McDowell could have moved between them. In that case, Beauregard must have fallen back towards Richmond, and Johnson must have been isolated. If Johnson had fallen back upon Manassas Junction, (as in fact he did on the twenty-first of July) Patterson would have been able to assist McDowell at the battle of Bull Run; whereas, by his exterior line of operations he actually gained nothing. Newspaper critics have attempted to throw all the blame of this defeat upon Patterson, and have compared him to Grouchy at Waterloo. From all the information we can obtain on this subject we can see no parallel in the two cases. Grouchy made an eccentric movement from interior lines, thus changing his interior to an exterior position, leaving the great body of Blucher's army nearer to that of Wellington than he was to Napoleon. Nevertheless, he was near enough to hear the cannonading of Waterloo, and might have reached the field of battle in time to prevent the disastrous retreat, if not to save the defeat. The country was an open one, and his army could have moved as rapidly as that of the enemy. On the contrary, Patterson's position was, from the beginning, an exterior one; he was some sixty miles from the battle field, with a strong force between him and McDowell. Moreover, Johnson had a railroad at his command, and could reach Manassas Junction in a few hours; whereas, Patterson, without cars, (the railroad being obstructed and the bridges destroyed) could not have reached Bull Run in less than two days, to say nothing of the opposition which he would have encountered from the army of Johnson. We know nothing of the reasons why Patterson's army was at Martinsburg and Harper's Ferry—whether his line of operations and his positions were of his own selection, or were the result of superior orders; our criticism is based solely upon the movements as they occurred, without any intention to blame or to exculpate any one.

Again, long or deep lines of operation—that is, where the object to be reached is very distant from the base or point of departure—are condemned by the best authorities; for the reason that they afford the enemy an opportunity to operate on the flank and cut off the moving column from its source of supply. Moreover, when far advanced upon its march, it would be very difficult to reinforce a column moving on such a line. If the circumstances of the war require the adoption of a deep line of operation in a particular case, it is a maxim of war that it be so directed as not to be cut by a flank movement of the enemy. Moreover, in order to avoid this danger, the line selected should be one upon which the troops can move with great rapidity, and be through a country where abundant supplies can be obtained; for to carry them with the army would greatly retard its movements. To illustrate what is understood by a faulty deep line of operations, we will suppose that an army of five or ten thousand men was to be sent from California to attack the Confederate forces in Texas and Arkansas; and that the line of operations chosen should be by Mazatlan or Guaymas through Chihuahua, Monclova or Monterey, the enemy being in possession of Mesilla and the eastern portion of Arizona!

Tactics may be divided into two distinct parts: grand tactics, or tactics of battle; and elementary tactics, or tactics of instruction and maneuver. The first relates to the formation of troops upon the battle field—that is, whether they are to be drawn up in one or two lines, in columns, in squares, or in echelon, and how each arm is to be placed with regard to the other; whether the cavalry and artillery are to be placed in the center, on the flanks, or distributed throughout the line, and whether they are to act separately, or in conjunction with each other, or with the infantry. The second relates to the manner of forming lines, columns, squares, etc., of deploying as skirmishers, and of passing from one formation to another. The latter is the alphabet of the military art; while the former combines the letters of this alphabet into words and sentences. To illustrate this distinction, we will refer to the battle of Bull Run. The general dispositions of the troops on both sides—that is, the combinations and arrangements of the opposing forces made by the commanding generals—were matters which pertained to grand tactics; but the orders of march, of fire, of deploy, etc., made by the commanders of brigades, regiments, battalions and companies, pertained to what is called elementary tactics.

The formation or order of battle must always depend in a great measure upon the nature of the ground, the position of the enemy, and the character of the troops; it is therefore impossible to lay down any general rule which would be applicable to all cases. Military writers describe twelve different orders of battle: the parallel, the oblique, the perpendicular, the concave, the convex, the echelon, etc., etc., with their various modifications and combinations to suit the circumstances of each particular case. Our limits will not permit us to enter into any discussion of these different formations, and we must refer our readers to professional treatises on this subject. We will remark, however, that thin lines, whether parallel, oblique or perpendicular, whether straight, convex or concave, are deemed objectionable, for the reason that they are easily penetrated. Columns at a distance are also objectionable, because the enemy may move between and attack them in flank. Again, heavy columns of infantry by grand divisions furnish an excellent mark for the enemy's artillery. A reserve is always of great importance in a battle; but it should never be so large as to weaken the line. A general in command of an army of 50,000 men who should engage only 25,000, keeping the other 25,000 in reserve or in observation, would, by such a disposition, paralyze and render useless one-half of his own force!

Logistics, or the art of subsisting and moving armies, is one of the most difficult subjects connected with the military art. In most countries of Continental Europe these matters are managed, under the direction of the commanding general, by a corps of officers specially appointed and organized for that purpose. In the English service they are managed by civilians, under what is called the "contract system." The Crimean War demonstrated the vast inferiority of the former over the latter. The English soldiers were left half starved and half naked ; while the French were abundantly provided for, and at much less expense. In time of peace, and during the Mexican War, our army has usually been well supplied by means of the officers of the quartermaster, commissary and medical departments. But in the Utah expedition Mr. Secretary Floyd introduced the English system, of contracts made at the War Office through his political hirelings and hangers-on. The result was an entire waste of the public money, deficiency in the quantity and quality of the supplies, and the introduction of political corruption into a branch of service which had hitherto been above suspicion. If such a system should be adopted and continued in the present war, the appropriation of $500,000,000 will soon melt away, and our soldiers be left naked, bare-footed, and but half fed !

Again, the erection of fortifications, batteries, military bridges, etc., as connected with the movements of troops, and the attack and defense of military positions, forms a most important branch of the military art. Unless furnished with a proper reconnoissance of the enemy's positions, defenses, means of attack, etc., a general will be liable to commit most serious errors, both in his lines of operations, his points of attack, and his dispositions for a battle. And in order to ensure such reconnoissance and such means of attack and defense, he must have competent engineer officers and a proper number of engineer troops. Without drawing illustrations from European wars, it will suffice, to show the necessity of such military reconnoissances, to refer to the

BATTLES OF GREAT BETHEL AND BULL RUN.

AN army organized for operations in the field, consists of several distinct branches, or arms, viz : the staff and administrative corps, infantry, cavalry, artillery and engineers. The staff usually includes all officers above the rank of colonel, and all officers, as adjutant general, aids, etc., not attached to a particular corps or department, and not serving with a company, battalion or regiment. In most foreign services there is a staff corps, composed of different grades of officers, who assist the general-in-chief, generals of corp d'armées, of divisions and of brigades, in the performance of their respective duties. Administrative corps are organized to provide supplies and means of transportation. In our service, aides-de-camp are appointed from the line of the army, and the adjutant general's department is a special staff corps; the quartermasters, commissaries, medical officers and paymasters, are also considered as staff corps; but in England they are designated as administrative corps. All officers of the staff proper serve directly under the orders of some general officers; whereas officers of these corps have their special administrative duties to perform, under the direction of their respective chiefs. It is usual in our service, however, to attach the ranking officer of each of these departments to the staff of the general commanding an army; and officers so attached are very properly considered as staff officers.

The general staff of an army, organized for service in the field, consists of the general-commanding-in-chief and the officers attached to his personal staff, of the generals of corps d'armées, or separate columns, and their respective staffs, of generals of divisions and their staffs, and of generals of brigades and their staffs. Two or more regiments form a brigade; two or more brigades a division; two or more divisions a corps d'armée; and two or more corps d'armées an army. Brigades are commanded by brigadier generals; divisions by generals of divisions; corps d'armées by lieutenant generals; and armies by generals or marshals. In our service, in former times, we had the rank of lieutenant general and general, but at present, only brigadier and major generals—the latter title being very improperly applied to generals of division. The office of general no longer exists, and lieutenant general is merely an honorary title by brevet. Armies are generally named from their location or object; as The Army of the Potomac, The Army of the West, The Army of Invasion, etc. Corps d'armées, divisions and brigades are usually designated by numbers; as first, second, etc. Orders are always issued from the Head Quarters of an army, corps, division or brigade; and are signed by the general issuing them, or by some member of his staff.

Having described the general staff and administrative corps of an army, we will now pass to the line, or four principal arms, of which it is always composed—infantry, cavalry, artillery and engineers.

Infantry constitutes the great mass of every well organized army. It is usually organized into regiments of one, two or three battalions, each battalion being composed of either eight or ten companies. There are four different ways of engaging infantry, or of forming them for battle: 1st, as skirmishers, or light troops; 2d, in deployed lines; 3d, in lines of battalions ployed on the center, or formed in squares; and 4th, in deep masses. Skirmishers are employed as scouts, to fill up intervals between columns, and to act on the flanks and front of moving lines and masses. The particular manner of arranging infantry for battle must depend upon the nature of the ground, the position of the enemy, and the obstacles to be overcome. Squares and echelons are most effective against cavalry. These formations are usually left to the discretion of the commanders of regiments and battalions, who should always seek to render their forces as effective as possible in making or resisting an attack. The best tacticians say that offensive operations of infantry on the field of battle require mobility, solidity and impulsion; while defensive operations should combine solidity with the greatest possible amount of fire.

The arm next in importance is cavalry. Its principal merit consists in its mobility and velocity, as it has very little solidity. It is employed in battle in four different ways: 1st, in deployed lines; 2d, by regiments, in columns of attack on the center; 3d, by a mixed formation; and 4th, by a deep formation of several columns. The formation to be adopted in any particular case must depend upon the character of the ground, and the nature and position of the party to be attacked. The great value of cavalry is in reconnoitering before a battle, in charging upon exposed points during the engagement, in covering a retreat, and in pursuing and destroying a beaten enemy. The great expense of cavalry, and the difficulty of reducing it to proper discipline, and the increased importance of artillery, have rendered this arm less popular than in former times. Nevertheless, an army without a proper proportion of cavalry will always be wanting in efficiency. McDowell's army was certainly very deficient in cavalry; and to this deficiency must be attributed, at least in part, the disgraceful disorders of his retreat.

Artillery is next to be considered. The importance of this arm has been much increased within the last few years by the use of rifled cannon, and the greater accuracy of fire and range of projectiles. It is usually divided into foot artillery and horse or mounted artillery. The unit of force in this arm is a battery; which is usually composed of six pieces, two of which are howitzers, with the men and other necessities required to serve them. The term battery is also applied to cannon in a redoubt, field work, or other fortification, without any reference to the number of guns. A regimental organization of artillery is a mere nominal arrangement; for, in actual service, artillery never acts by regiment, unless as infantry—as was the case with a large portion of our artillery in the Mexican War.

This arm admits of three promotions: 1st, in column; 2d, in battle; and 3d, in battery. In column, it ordinarily moves by sections of two pieces, each piece being followed or preceded by its caisson. In battle the pieces are drawn up in line, with their caissons in rear. In battery the formation is the same, but the pieces are unlimbered, and the guns directed towards the enemy and prepared for firing.

Artillery is used in battle to destroy the enemy's works of defense, to silence his batteries, and to disorganize his masses; and as an auxiliary force, to protect the deploying of our cavalry and infantry. It is of immense value in protecting a point of attack, and in covering the retreat of a broken regiment or column. Artillery is one of the most scientific branches of the military art, and the officers of this arm should be thoroughly educated.

Engineer troops, on the field of battle, usually act as infantry.

when not required for constructing batteries, or in removing and destroying the material defenses of the enemy. The great value of this arm, however, is in making reconnaissances, constructing and destroying bridges, opening roads and removing obstacles in the way of an advancing column, and in constructing defenses for resisting an attack. Beauregard seems to have made good use of his knowledge of engineering, in securing his position at Bull Run and Manassas Junction. Officers of engineers should be thoroughly educated in all the branches of military science; and in our service, they must be graduates of West Point.

The relative proportions to be given to each of these different arms in an army must depend, in some measure, upon the character of the opposing force, the nature of the country in which operations are to be carried on, and the obstacles to be overcome or to be opposed to the enemy. Nevertheless, experience has established certain general rules applicable to most cases of army organization. The infantry, as already stated, forms the great mass of every force organized for service in the field, and is made the basis of the apportionment; the cavalry is from one-fourth to one-sixth of the infantry; the artillery about two-thirds of the cavalry; and the engineers about two-thirds of the artillery. It is the opinion of some, that recent experience requires a diminution of the cavalry force, and a corresponding increase of artillery. This may well be done in particular cases, but it is doubtful whether there is any sufficient authority for changing the general rule adopted by the most experienced military writers of Europe. Any great departure from this rule, or deficiency of one arm, as compared with the others, will probably be felt in the results of campaign.

THE foregoing brief analysis of the art of war is necessarily very imperfect; nevertheless, it may assist a popular understanding of the subject, and serve to convince our officers of militia and volunteers that, in order to qualify themselves for their important duties, they have something more to learn than the mere manual of arms, and the elementary drill of companies and battalions. It certainly is an anomalous phase in the character of our people, that while they seek experienced and competent lawyers and doctors to conduct their law business and to care for their health, they are willing to intrust the expenditure of vast sums of money, the honor of their flag, and even their lives, to generals who have neither military experience nor military instruction.

CORPS D'ARMEES.

An effective organization of troops for all purposes is composed of three arms—Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery. Upon a due proportion of each of these depends their capacity for attack or defense.

Infantry is subdivided into "Infantry of the Line," who bear the brunt of the battle; "Light Infantry," who act as flankers; and "Riflemen," or sharp-shooters.

Cavalry is second in importance to Infantry, and should be in the proportion of about one regiment to four.

Artillery has been developed to such perfection that in modern warfare it is sometimes the most effective arm of the service. It should, however, be well supported, and two batteries of six (6 pounders) field pieces is sufficient for one division of four foot regiments.

Upon this basis, then, 5,000 troops divided as follows, will constitute an effective

PACIFIC STATES.

More than one-fourth of the entire area of the United States lies west of the Rocky Mountains, comprising the States of California and Oregon, and the Territories of Washington, Nevada, Utah and the western half of New Mexico. For the want of a general term comprehending all this region, we have chosen the designation Pacific States as the most expressive that could be selected at present, and one which will naturally come into use to distinguish the new State organizations that are destined to be formed from time to time on this side of the mountains, from those known to Californians as the Atlantic States.

The Pacific States are bounded north by the British Possessions, east by the Rocky Mountains, south by the Mexican boundary line, and west by the Pacific Ocean. They lie mainly between the 32d and 49th parallels of north latitude, and between the 110th and 125th degrees of west longitude; the territory thus included forming a parallelogram about 1,100 miles in length from north to south, by 800 miles in breadth, and covering a superficial area of 880,000 square miles.

This region is divided into two unequal portions by the Sierra Nevada Mountains and their northern extension, the Cascade Range. The general elevation of this chain of mountains is about 9,000 feet—numerous isolated peaks rising to a much higher altitude. Between the Sierras and Cascades, or central range, on the west, and the Rocky Mountains on the east, lie three great internal basins, viz: the Plateaus of the Upper Columbia, whose waters, draining eastern Oregon and Washington, find egress through a pass in the Cascades; the Great Fremont Basin, comprising Nevada and Utah, whose waters never find the ocean; and the Colorado District, a rainless desert in southern California and western New Mexico, through which the Colorado River flows to the Gulf of California. On the west of the great central range, and east of the Coast Range—which projects into headlands and recedes from the shore into double ranges, and bristles with numerous spurs along the whole coast—lie three great agricultural valleys, viz : that of Puget Sound and the Cowlitz River in Washington ; the Willamette Valley in Oregon ; and the Valley of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers in California.

The Pacific States abound in every description of mineral wealth. The precious metals are successfully mined in large tracts of hundreds of miles in extent, and new and surprising developments are constantly being made. Along the slopes of the Sierras, among the mountains of northern California and southern Oregon, and on the tributaries of the Columbia river east of the Cascades, gold in placers and quartz veins exists in inexhaustible quantities. Immense veins of silver, cropping out into ledges and penetrating the earth to an unknown depth, have attracted millions of dollars in capital to the desert plains and barren mountain ranges of Nevada. Mines of quicksilver rivaling those of Almaden, and deposits of copper not less extensive than those of Superior, and the multiplying indications of tin, iron, coal and other useful minerals throughout this region, are full of exultant promise of the future, for they establish the fact that the Pacific States stand unrivaled in the variety, extent, and wealth of their mineral resources. But our mountains and valleys are not valuable alone for the treasure buried beneath the surface. Vast forests of timber, often of gigantic growth, clothe the slopes of the former, and agricultural produce of every description known to tropical or temperate climates is raised in abundance and exported from the latter.

In addition to these attractions, the marvelous salubrity of our climate infuses new life and vigor into the veins of the toil-worn and debilitated, and almost rejuvenates the aged ; and the beauty and grandeur of our varied scenery captivates the poet, the artist, and the lover of the novel and picturesque.

The plan of our work for 1862 embraces the official and miscellaneous statistics of the following general divisions of the Pacific States only :

	Sq. miles.	Population.	Capital.
California	188,981.....	380,015.....	Sacramento.
Oregon.....	102,600.....	52,644.....	Salem.
Washington Territory.....	176,141.....	10,578.....	Vancouver.
Nevada Territory.....	45,812.....	*16,374.....	Carson City.

CALIFORNIA.

The State of California is bounded north by Oregon, east by Nevada and New Mexico, south by Lower California, and west by the Pacific Ocean. It is about 720 miles in length from north to south, by 240 miles in breadth, and includes an area of nearly 190,000 square miles, which exceeds that of the New England and Middle States combined.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The term of office of the County Judge is four years, and of the other county officers two years each. The County Judge is ex officio Judge of the Court of Sessions and Court of Probate. The County Clerk is Clerk of all the Courts in the county; he is also ex officio County Recorder and County Auditor, except in those counties where, by special enactment, such officers exist. The District Attorney, in addition to a salary, receives certain fees provided by law.

LEGAL DISTANCES are fixed by statute to regulate the mileage of Members of the Legislature, and of county officers whose official duties require them to go to the Capital, Insane Asylum, or State Prison.

1. ALAMEDA COUNTY.

Alameda county, situated upon the Bay of San Francisco, embraces an area of about eight hundred square miles, and is one of the most flourishing agricultural districts in the State. It contains 60,000 acres under cultivation, and 20,000 acres of rich land are overflowed by the tides. The warm mineral springs in the southern part are much resorted to for medical purposes.

COUNTY SEAT—SAN LEANDRO.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 135 miles; from Stockton, 145 miles; from San Quentin, 20 miles.

THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Samuel Bell McKee, Judge District Court; sessions, third Monday in March, July and November.

NINTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.—Senator, Hon. A. M. Crane, Alameda, 1863.

MEMBERS OF ASSEMBLY.—Hons. Samuel B. Bell, Oakland, and J. M. Moore, Centreville.

2. AMADOR COUNTY.

Amador county, occupying a central position between the Northern and Southern mines, is at once rich in mineral and fertile in agricultural resources. The valleys of Ione and Jackson, in the lower foot hills, are gardens, and inexhaustible forests of timber exist on the Sierras in the eastern part. The placer mines in this county have been long worked, and its many quartz mills continue remunerative.

COUNTY SEAT—JACKSON.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 55 miles; from Stockton, 56 miles; from San Quentin, 187 miles.

SIXTEENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. James H. Hardy, Judge District Court; sessions, first Monday in March, June, September and December.

George, J. F. Farley, John H. Fry, James F. Hubbard, P. C. Johnson, J. G. Severance, J. Foot Turner; Volcano, Henry Cook, James M. Porter.

BUENA VISTA COUNTY.

This is an unorganized county, attached to Tulare county for executive, judicial and representative purposes. It is situated at the southern extremity of the great San Joaquin valley, the Sierras and Coast Range uniting to form its southern boundary. The Tulare and Kern Lake system of internal navigation and the Kern Lake gold region are within its limits.

3. BUTTE COUNTY.

Butte county, situated in the central portion of the Sacramento valley, is, in the western part, well adapted for agricultural purposes, and its entire eastern portion abounds in mineral wealth. The tributaries of the Feather river are all gold-bearing streams, and the mountains contain much fine timber.

COUNTY SEAT—OROVILLE.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 75 miles; from Stockton, 120 miles; from San Quentin, 205 miles.

FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Warren T. Sexton, Judge District Court; sessions, first Monday in March, July and November.

Granger, P. H. Harris, Joseph E. N. Lewis, Charles F. Lott, A. Maurice, Jr., Simon Rosenbaum, Warren T. Sexton, F. M. Smith, Thomas Wells.

4. CALAVERAS COUNTY.

Calaveras county embraces one of the most productive mining regions in the State. The yield of its placer mines has been constant and abundant, covering a large extent of surface, and requiring an immense but profitable outlay of capital in canals and ditches. Its quartz resources, more recently developed, are proving very remunerative. Rich, though small, agricultural valleys exist in the foot-hills, and noble forests of pine and spruce stretch up the slopes of the Sierras. Among these is a gigantic forest of world-wide fame—the Mammoth Tree Grove, containing trees 300 feet in height, and more than 100 feet in girth.

Scarcely less important than the gold mines of Calaveras, are the extensive veins of copper lately discovered in Salt Spring Valley, near the western border of the county. They are said to be not inferior in richness to the celebrated copper mines of Lake Superior. Silver ore of paying richness has also been taken from several localities in this county.

5. COLUSI COUNTY.

This county, situated in the central portion of the Sacramento Valley, and extending up the slopes of the Coast Range on the west, contains an area of about 4,000 square miles, and is exclusively an agricultural and grazing district. The eastern half of the county is fertile valley land, and contains about 25,000 acres of unreclaimed swamp land.

COUNTY SEAT—COLUSA.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 75 miles; from Stockton, 125 miles; from San Quentin, 205 miles.

FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Warren T. Sexton, Judge District Court; sessions, second Monday in January, and first Monday in May and September.

6. CONTRA COSTA COUNTY.

This county is well adapted for agricultural and grazing purposes, the numerous hills affording an extensive range for stock, while the finest quality of farming land exists in the fertile valleys. Along the estuaries of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers lie 25,000 acres of unreclaimed swamp land. At the foot of Mt. Diablo a rich coal mine is yielding abundantly and remuneratively.

COUNTY SEAT—MARTINEZ.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 90 miles; from Stockton, 90 miles; from San Quentin, 45 miles.

SEVENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. E. W. McKinstry, Judge District Court; sessions, first Monday in January, May and September.

TENTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.—Senator, Hon. Franklin M. Warmcastle, Pacheco, 1862.

7. DEL NORTE COUNTY.

Del Norte, the north-western county of the State, contains an area of about 2,250 square miles. Its principal mineral resources are copper and gold, as yet but partially developed. The valleys in the western part are well adapted to agricultural and grazing purposes, and the mountains in the eastern part abound in inexhaustible forests of the finest timber.

COUNTY SEAT—CRESCENT CITY.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 465 miles; from Stockton, 465 miles; from San Quentin, 365 miles.

8. EL DORADO COUNTY.

This county, stretching across the Sierras in the central portion of the State, contains an area of about 2,300 square miles, full two-thirds of which is mineral land. In point of population and mineral productiveness it is one of the most important counties in the State. Numerous small valleys adapted to agricultural and grazing purposes, and open forests of oak timber abound in its western part; while inexhaustible forests of pine, spruce and fir clothe the slopes and summits of the Sierras. At Coloma, in this county, gold was first discovered in 1848, and now an extensive system of ditches and canals enables every hill and mining gulch, where gold has been found in paying quantities, to be worked, and the hill, tunnel, placer and quartz mining operations employ a large and prosperous population.

Alabaster Cave, situated near the valuable limestone quarries in the western part of the county, is a famous place of resort. The Placerville road over the Sierras is the mainly traveled route between California and the Washoe silver region; and Placerville is the western terminus of the Great Central Overland Mail Route.

COUNTY SEAT—PLACERVILLE.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 50 miles; from Stockton, 95 miles; from San Quentin, 180 miles.

ELEVENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Benjamin F. Myers, Judge District Court; sessions, second Monday in February and May, and third Monday in August and November.

FIFTEENTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.—Senators, Hons. A. St. Clair Denver, Placerville, 1862; and O. Harvey, Placerville, 1862.

9. FREZNO COUNTY.

Though known to contain mineral wealth, the mineral resources of this county have been but slightly developed, owing to the scarcity of water. The land in the vicinity of King's River and the Tulare Canal (a projected work) is well adapted for agricultural purposes. The canal is intended to connect Tulare Lake with the great bend of the San Joaquin River, and will drain some of the most fertile and valuable farming land in the State.

10. HUMBOLDT COUNTY.

This county, situated on the sea coast, contains an area of about 3,000 square miles. Humboldt Bay, the only harbor in the State north of San Francisco, gives the county superior commercial advantages. The land in the vicinity of the bay, and in the valleys of Eel River and its tributaries, is well adapted for the support of a farming population; while the hills in the central and eastern portions of the county afford an extensive range for stock. A strip of redwood timber, stretching through the county from north to south, forms the basis of an active and prosperous lumbering business. The salmon fisheries on Eel River are second to none in the State. The commerce from this port extends to the islands of the Pacific, China, and South America, as well as to other points on the coast.

COUNTY SEAT—EUREKA.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 390 miles; from Stockton, 390 miles; from San Quentin, 265 miles.

11. KLAMATH COUNTY.

This county, situated on the sea coast in the northern part of the State, is very mountainous and contains but little land adapted to agricultural purposes, but its mineral resources are considerable. The placer diggings on the Klamath, Trinity and Salmon Rivers, the quartz mines at the head waters of the latter stream, and the auriferous sand washed up by the tidal currents at Gold Bluff on the beach, afford profitable employment to a large number of persons.

COUNTY SEAT—ORLEANS BAR.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 450 miles; from Stockton, 450 miles; from San Quentin, 350 miles.

EIGHTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Wm. R. Turner, Judge District Court; sessions, first Monday in April, July and October.

12. LAKE COUNTY.

This county was organized from the northern half of Napa in 1861. It derives its name from Clear Lake, a beautiful sheet of water embosomed in the mountains. The land in the vicinity of the lake is well adapted to agricultural purposes, and together with several fine valleys which open into the lake valley, supports a thrifty population. The mountains abound in game and the streams in trout, and the scenery is picturesque and attractive to the tourist.

COUNTY SEAT—LAKEPORT.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 165 miles; from Stockton, 215 miles; from San Quentin, 130 miles.

13. LOS ANGELES COUNTY.

This county embraces the most fertile district in the southern portion of the State. Its broad, rich plains and numerous valleys sloping westward from the Coast Range, are peculiarly adapted to the culture of the grape, and Los Angeles is already the vineyard of the western world. Besides the remarkable agricultural resources of this county, the extent and variety of its mineral wealth, embracing gold, silver, copper and tin, has attracted much attention. The mineral springs in the vicinity of Los Angeles are said to possess superior medicinal qualities, and the salubrity of the climate, being subject to neither the extreme heat of the internal valleys, nor the chilling sea winds of the more northern coast, is unsurpassed.

COUNTY SEAT—LOS ANGELES.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 550 miles; from Stockton, 550 miles; from San Quentin, 440 miles.

FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Benjamin Hayes, Judge District Court; sessions, third Monday in March, July and November.

14. MARIN COUNTY.

Marin County is a mountainous peninsula, between the northern arm of the Bay of San Francisco and the ocean, and contains an area of about 700 square miles. It is mainly adapted to grazing purposes, though there is some fine timber land within its limits. The State Prison is located at San Quentin, in this County.

15. MARIPOSA COUNTY.

This county, though lying in the central portion of the State, occupies the most southern portion of what is called the Southern mines. Nearly the entire surface of the county abounds in rich placer and quartz gold mines, that can be profitably worked for many years to come. Small valleys, suitable for cultivation, exist in the foot hills, and forests of splendid timber cover the mountain slopes.

The Yo-Semite Valley, at the head-waters of the Merced river, in this county, is justly ranked among the wonders of the world. It is a magnificent rift or chasm in the Sierras, little more than a mile in width, and some ten miles in length, with perpendicular walls from 2,600 to 4,500 feet in height. Several mountain streams plunge down its precipitous sides, some of them lost in spray before reaching the depths below. Pages would be required for a description of this valley, which in the magnitude and boldness of its outlines, and the sublimity of its varied scenery, is second to no other locality in the world.

16. MENDOCINO COUNTY.

Mendocino county embraces a mountainous district mainly suitable for stock-raising, and some fine valleys adapted to agricultural purposes, and is steadily increasing in wealth and population. It is well supplied with timber, and several small towns on the coast are engaged in the lumber trade.

18. MONO COUNTY.

This county was recently erected from that portion of Calaveras, Mariposa and Nevada Counties lying east of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and embraces a long narrow strip between the summit of the latter and the eastern boundary of the State. This region is believed to be very rich in the variety and extent of its mineral wealth. The silver lodes in the Esmeralda District have prospected very richly, and numerous quartz mills will soon be in operation in that locality. The placer and quartz gold mines in the vicinity of Mono Lake are being successfully worked, and though imperfectly prospected, indications of rich deposits of the precious metals have been discovered in other parts of the county. Its great elevation above the sea renders it unsuitable for the cultivation of fruit and many of the cereals, but a large extent of land is adapted to grazing purposes.

19. MONTEREY COUNTY.

This county is situated on the coast, stretching southward from the bay of Monterey, and covers an area of about 4,000 square miles. It lies between the ocean and the main Coast Range some fifty miles to the east, stretching across two inner ranges and the intervening valleys. About two-thirds of the surface of this county is mountainous and admirably adapted to stock raising, particularly the raising of sheep—the elevated plateaus and sub-valleys being peculiarly suited to their growth—and the wool-clip far exceeds that of any other county in the State. In the productive valleys of the Bonita and Pajero Rivers, a numerous farming population derive an easy support. The mountains abound in indications of minerals—silver, quicksilver, lead, etc., but the mines have not been worked to any considerable extent.

COUNTY SEAT — MONTEREY.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 245 miles; from Stockton, 245 miles; from San Quentin, 130 miles.

THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Samuel B. McKee, Judge District Court; sessions, second Monday in April, August and December.

20. NAPA COUNTY.

Napa Valley, in this county, is one of the richest agricultural districts in the State. The remarkable yield of its agricultural products, and the variety and perfection of its fruits, are not excelled by any other valley of similar extent on the coast. The White Sulphur Springs and Soda Springs in this county are celebrated for their medicinal qualities, and these, together with picturesque scenery and a fine climate, are great attractions for the tourist and the invalid.

21. NEVADA COUNTY.

This is preëminently a mining county, over 500 square miles, or about one-half of its entire area, being mineral land. Its quartz mines are perhaps more productive, and in the vicinity of Grass Valley employ a larger capital, than those of any other county in the State; and the extensive placer mines continue to yield remunerative returns to a large and increasing population. Indications of rich silver lodes have been discovered near Grass Valley, and companies have been organized to develop them. The surface of this county is almost wholly mountainous, and is covered with extensive forests of timber—oak, maple and the harder varieties on the lower slopes, and pine, spruce and fir in the higher altitudes. Many of the small mountain valleys are well adapted to agricultural purposes, and very productive, fruit and grain being raised in quantities almost sufficient to supply the home market.

COUNTY SEAT—NEVADA CITY.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 65 miles; from Stockton, 125 miles; from San Quentin, 195 miles.

22. PLACER COUNTY.

This is a long, narrow county, extending from the Sacramento River across the Sierras to Lake Bigler. In the valley of the former, the land is well suited for agricultural purposes, and the mountainous districts are noted for the extraordinary yield of their hill diggings. An abundance of every description of timber exists in the county, adding greatly to its resources, and the lumber interests constitute an important addition to its commercial wealth. Lake Bigler, a favorite summer resort on the eastern border of the county, is a fine sheet of water, 5,500 feet above sea level, and some 20 miles in length by 6 in breadth. Nestled, at this elevation, between the two summits of the Sierras, which rise rock-ribbed and forest-laden nearly 4,000 feet into snowy peaks on either hand, there is presented to the eye a combination of mountain, lake and valley scenery, uniting in one imposing view, all the characteristics of the grand, beautiful and sublime in nature.

23. PLUMAS COUNTY.

This county, situated in the northern part of the State, contains an area of about 4,000 square miles, and the surface is rugged and mountainous, mostly at a considerable elevation above the sea. Its placer and quartz gold mines are extensive, productive and of a permanent character. Timber is abundant, and Honey Lake and other valleys in the eastern part are well adapted for agricultural and grazing purposes. There are several lakes, and numerous mineral springs, one of the latter possessing the power of petrifying wood. A large proportion of the overland emigration enters California through Beckworth and Honey Lake Passes in this county.

24. SACRAMENTO COUNTY.

Sacramento county embraces one of the finest agricultural districts in the State. Its area is about nine hundred and fifty miles, consisting of a strip of mining land on the eastern border, a tract of swamp land along the Sacramento river, and a central portion, covering the major part of the county, adapted equally well to tillage or grazing purposes, and excellent for both; and its large orchards, vast grain fields, extensive stock ranges, and open groves of oak timber, both astonish and delight the stranger. Sacramento city, the capital of the State, is the largest and most flourishing town in the interior, and contains about 15,000 inhabitants.

COUNTY SEAT—SACRAMENTO CITY.—Legal distance from Stockton, 45 miles; from San Quentin, 130 miles.

25. SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY.

This is the largest county in the State, and abounds in undeveloped mineral wealth of every description. Gold, silver, iron, copper, quicksilver and lead, are known to exist in large quantities. A small portion of the county lying west of the Coast Range is adapted for tillage and grazing, but the great bulk of the county, lying east of the Coast Range, is a parched and barren desert, varied only by broken ranges of naked mountains, and a few streams winding through narrow but fertile valleys.

26. SAN DIEGO COUNTY.

San Diego county extends across the southern extremity of the State, and contains about 13,000 square miles. A broad belt lying along the coast is adapted to grazing purposes. The Coast Range, with its numerous spurs, constitutes an extensive mountainous district, well supplied with timber, and known to contain a great variety of minerals. The Colorado Desert, level and shrubless, stretches eastward from the mountains to the Colorado River. It lies below the level of the Gulf of California, the waters of which are believed to have covered it at a former period. San Diego harbor is one of the safest and most commodious on the coast.

27. SAN FRANCISCO COUNTY.

The City and County of San Francisco (consolidated in July, 1856,) covers an area of about forty-four square miles, at the northern extremity of the peninsula which separates the southern arm of the Bay of San Francisco from the ocean. The city is advantageously situated for commercial purposes, and is the most important port on the west coast of America. Its harbor is deep, safe, and capacious enough for the navies of the world, and ships from every land are constantly arriving and departing through its Golden Gate. The growth of the city has been marvelously rapid—from a hamlet of adobe huts in 1849, it has become a substantially built metropolis of 83,000 inhabitants, and is yet in the vigor of its growth. Yerba Buena and Alcatraz Islands, in the Bay, and the Farrallone Islands, twenty miles west, belong to San Francisco. Fort Point and Fort Alcatraz, at the entrance of the harbor, are provided with heavy ordnance, and afford ample protection against foreign invasion.

Legal distance from Sacramento, 117 miles; from Stockton, 117 miles; from San Quentin, 12 miles.

28. SAN JOAQUIN COUNTY.

This county is situated at the junction of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, near the geographical center of the State, and stands first in agricultural wealth and resources. Its area is about 1,200 square miles, one-fourth of which is reclaimable swamp land of great fertility. San Joaquin is pre-eminently a wheat growing and stock raising county; its broad fields of golden grain are a surer and more productive crop than the golden sands of some of the mining counties. It exports wheat to Sacramento, to Washoe, to San Francisco and to foreign ports. Stockton, the principal town, contains about 4,000 inhabitants, and is, perhaps, the most substantially prosperous city in the interior. It is the point whence all the travel diverges to the southern mines, and steamers connect daily with Sacramento and San Francisco.

COUNTY SEAT—STOCKTON.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 45 miles; from San Quentin, 130 miles.

FIFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Charles M. Creaner, Judge District Court; sessions, first Monday in January, April, August and December.

ELEVENTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.—Senator, Hon. C. H. Chamberlain, 1863.

29. SAN LUIS OBISPO COUNTY.

This is one of the southern coast counties, and is well adapted for grazing purposes. The climate is very fine, and at certain seasons of the year the scenery of the Coast Range, with its fertile valleys, grassy slopes and wooded summits, is surpassingly beautiful. A noted sulphur spring exists near the old Spanish town of San Luis Obispo.

COUNTY SEAT—SAN LUIS OBISPO.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 335 miles; from Stockton, 335 miles; from San Quentin, 225 miles.

SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Joaquin Carillo, Judge District Court; sessions, second Monday in January, April, July and October.

30. SAN MATEO COUNTY.

This county lies between the southern arm of San Francisco Bay and the ocean, and contains an area of about two hundred and forty square miles. Redwood timber is abundant on the inner Coast Range, which traverses the whole length of the county and attains an elevation of 1,500 feet. Much of the county is fine farming and grazing land, and the completion of the San Francisco and San Jose Railway will afford an accessible market for its vegetable productions. Several mineral springs of note exist in the mountains, and many pleasant rural retreats lie among the folds and indentations of the western slope.

COUNTY SEAT—REDWOOD CITY.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 140 miles; from Stockton, 140 miles; from San Quentin, 40 miles.

TWELFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Alexander Campbell, Judge District Court; sessions, third Monday in April, August and December.

31. SANTA BARBARA COUNTY.

This is a county of large extent, situated upon the coast in the southern part of the State, and, being cut off from the chilling winds of the north-west by Point Conception, is reputed to enjoy one of the finest climates in the world. The county is traversed by long spurs of the Coast Range, well supplied with timber and subdivided into elevated valleys which are well adapted for grazing purposes. Gold, silver and coal have been found in the eastern border, and warm sulphur springs are numerous along the coast. Santa Barbara is picturesquely situated on the shore of the Pacific, nestled at the foot of a mountain chain which rises rapidly to a height of 3,000 feet above the ocean. The soil in the valleys is well adapted for the cultivation of the vine, olive, fig, orange, lemon and silk worm. Average temperature during the year, 65°. The large islands of San Miguel, Santa Rosa, Santa Cruz and San Nicolaus belong to this county.

COUNTY SEAT — SANTA BARBARA. — Legal distances from Sacramento, 435 miles; from Stockton, 435 miles; from San Quentin, 335 miles.

SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Joaquin Carillo, Judge District Court; sessions, first Monday in March, June, September and December.

32. SANTA CLARA COUNTY.

Santa Clara county embraces an area of about 1000 square miles, at the southern extremity of the Bay of San Francisco. A broad, rich valley extends southward from the Bay, in which every description of agricultural produce is raised in great perfection and abundance. Special attention has been paid to the cultivation of fruit and vegetables, every variety of which finds a congenial soil and climate in this fertile and sheltered valley. The surrounding hills are well adapted for grazing purposes, and forests of good building timber cover the slopes of the Santa Cruz mountains on the west.

San Jose and Santa Clara are flourishing places, three miles apart—the former a city of 3,000 inhabitants. The beautiful gardens in these towns are irrigated by means of artesian wells, for which the geological formation of the valley is very favorable. The quicksilver mines in this county, about fifteen miles south of San Jose, are the richest in the world; the most noted is New Almaden, which is perhaps more productive than its famous namesake in old Spain ever was. Three others, the Enriqueta, Guadaloupe and New Idria, are in the vicinity. The extraordinary yield of these mines has already reduced the marketable value of quicksilver throughout the world.

COUNTY SEAT—SAN JOSE.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 150 miles; from Stockton, 105 miles; from San Quentin, 80 miles.

THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Samuel B. McKee, Judge District Court; sessions, first Monday in January, May and September.

33. SANTA CRUZ COUNTY.

This is a long, narrow county, situated on the Bay of Monterey, between the summit of the Coast Range and the ocean. The land at the base of the mountains spreads out into rich tracts and fertile valleys, well adapted for agricultural purposes, and the more elevated region is covered with dense forests of excellent redwood timber. Gold, silver and quicksilver are known to exist, but, with the exception of lime, which is an article of export, the mineral resources of Santa Cruz county have not been developed. Its industrial interests, however, are considerable. The paper mills, and particularly the tanneries, in this county are the most important in the State.

COUNTY SEAT—SANTA CRUZ.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 245 miles; from Stockton, 245 miles; from San Quentin, 135 miles.

THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Samuel B. McKee, Judge District Court; sessions, third Monday in April, August and December.

34. SHASTA COUNTY.

Shasta county embraces a large extent of mountainous country at the head of the Sacramento Valley, where the Coast Range and Sierras approach and meet. The valley land and lower foothills are fertile and productive, and being settled by a substantial farming population. The more elevated regions are well adapted for grazing purposes, and inexhaustible forests of pine, cedar, oak and ash exist throughout the mountainous districts. The gold mines in this county are extensive and profitable, and in the south-western part have been long and favorably known for their constant and abundant yield. Among the undeveloped mineral resources are copper, iron, coal and several mineral springs.

COUNTY SEAT—SHASTA.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 185 miles; from Stockton, 235 miles; from San Quentin, 315 miles.

35. SIERRA COUNTY.

This is almost exclusively a mining county, and is situated among the Sierra Nevada Mountains in the northern mines. Its rich gold placers, hill diggings and quartz veins have attracted hither a numerous and hardy population, and occasioned the profitable outlay of a vast amount of capital in quartz mills, tunnels and ditches. Henness Pass, in this county, is one of the best passes over the Sierras, and the route is rapidly becoming a favorite one.

36. SISKIYOU COUNTY.

This large county, stretching nearly across the northern extremity of the State, is distinguished for the productiveness of its gold mines. "It is interspersed with and surrounded on all sides by towering mountains," one of which, Mount Shasta, an extinct volcano whose summit rises to an altitude of 14,000 feet, the highest peak in California. Two fine valleys in the western part of the county—Scott and Shasta Valleys—redeem it somewhat from the sterility and ruggedness of its general aspect. These valleys, though elevated several thousand feet above sea level, are very fertile and susceptible of a high state of cultivation, and the rich green foliage which clothes them in spring and early summer presents a singular contrast with the snow-clad peaks around them. The flourishing city of Yreka, the largest north of Marysville, is located in Shasta Valley, and the extraordinary yield of the mines in that vicinity and farther west has given it a long and continued prosperity.

COUNTY SEAT—YREKA.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 350 miles; from Stockton, 395 miles; from San Quentin, 480 miles.

37. SOLANO COUNTY.

This is one of the central and agricultural counties, and from its favorable location on Suisun and San Pablo Bays—extensions of the Bay of San Francisco—all its surplus products are readily shipped to market. Suisun is the principal shipping port of the county. Benicia, formerly the Capital of the State, contains several seminaries of learning, and is a United States military post. The Navy Yard, at Mare Island—a tongue of land adjoining Vallejo—is the only one on the west coast of America, and when finished according to the extensive scale adopted, it will be the largest, most complete and best dockyard in the world.

38. SONOMA COUNTY.

This county embraces one of the richest and most flourishing agricultural districts in the State. There are four principal valleys—Sonoma, Petaluma, Santa Rosa and Russian River—that vie with each other in fertility of soil and variety of products. The mountains of the northern part are covered with redwood forests. The lower hills furnish a fine range for grazing purposes, and abound in beautiful open groves of oak timber. The valleys are the homes of a thrifty and rapidly increasing population, devoted mainly to rural pursuits. The California Geysers, named after the far famed Iceland springs, are situated in the eastern border of this county, about fifty miles north of Petaluma.

COUNTY SEAT—SANTA ROSA.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 130 miles; from Stockton, 130 miles; from San Quentin, 40 miles.

39. STANISLAUS COUNTY.

This county is situated in the San Joaquin Valley, and extends from the Coast Range on the west to, and including a portion of, the foot-hills of the Sierras on the east. The land is generally well adapted for grazing and agricultural purposes; a broad belt of swamp land along the San Joaquin River being reclaimable for either of these purposes. The mining interests in the eastern part of the county are quite extensive, but owing to the scarcity of water the gold yield has not been equal to the capacity of the mines. Important veins of copper have also been found, and other minerals are known to exist within its borders.

COUNTY SEAT—LA GRANGE.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 85 miles; from Stockton, 40 miles; from San Quentin, 170 miles.

40. SUTTER COUNTY.

This county embraces a level tract of land between the Sacramento and Feather Rivers, in the central part of the Sacramento Valley, and covers an area of about six hundred square miles. The land is well adapted for agricultural purposes, and a portion of it, which is annually overflowed, affords excellent pasturage for several months in the year. The Marysville Buttes, in the northern part of the county, form a singular feature in the landscape. "These are a group of mountains on a porphyritic base, of about 1,600 feet in height, rising directly out of the level plain, which flows all around them."

COUNTY SEAT—YUBA CITY.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 50 miles; from Stockton, 95 miles; from San Quentin, 165 miles.

41. TEHAMA COUNTY.

This county is situated near the head of the Sacramento Valley, on both sides of the Sacramento River, and embraces a fine agricultural and grazing district, which is gradually being improved. Red Bluff, at the head of steam navigation, is a flourishing place, through which most of the freight and travel destined for the northern mines must pass. In the vicinity is Tuscan Springs, a salt mine of some note, which is yielding well. The mountain crests on each side of the valley are covered with snow the major part of the year, and present a fine contrast to the flower-spangled fields below in the months of April and May.

42. TRINITY COUNTY.

This is an elevated, mountainous county in the northern part of the State, and abounds in auriferous wealth throughout nearly its whole extent. It is drained by the numerous branches of the Trinity River, which flows westward to the ocean. Many of these small streams cut their way down the mountain sides in deep canons, at the bottom of which the rich river diggings are found. The land suitable for agricultural purposes is limited, and lies in narrow strips along the banks of the streams at the bottoms of deep valleys.

43. TULARE COUNTY.

Tulare county derives its name from Tulare Lake, and the luxuriant growth of tules on its marshy borders. The county is divided by the Sierras into two nearly equal portions, widely different in their character. That part lying east of the mountains is a rich silver mining district, known as the Coso region, and is attracting a large amount of capital for its developement. The mountains are covered with immense forests of timber, among which there are said to be groves of gigantic trees. The western part of the county is one of the finest agricultural and grazing districts in the State, and in the neighborhood of Visalia is rapidly filling up with an enterprising population. The contemplated

Tulare Canal, designed to render the outlet of Tulare Lake navigable to the San Joaquin River, will, when completed, greatly facilitate transportation and enhance the value of land.

COUNTY SEAT—VISALIA.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 250 miles; from Stockton, 205 miles; from San Quentin, 335 miles.

THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Ethelbert Burke, Judge District Court; sessions, fourth Monday in February, June and October.

FOURTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.—Senator, Hon. Thomas Baker, Visalia, 1863.

MEMBER OF ASSEMBLY.—Hon. James C. Pemberton, Visalia.

44. TUOLUMNE COUNTY.

This county lies on the western slope of the Sierras in the central part of the State, and is remarkable chiefly for its inexhaustible mines of gold. The placers, tunnel diggings, and quartz veins have yielded such remunerative returns, that energetic capitalists have expended millions of dollars in the construction of ditches, flumes and mills to facilitate mining operations, and have generally found their enterprise amply rewarded.

The higher slopes of the mountains are covered with vast forests of pine and cedar, and the timber is sometimes conveyed to market by being floated down the flumes built for mining purposes. Numerous small valleys in the foot hills are susceptible of a high state of cultivation, and are the homes of a thrifty farming population.

COUNTY SEAT—SONORA.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 115 miles; from Stockton, 70 miles; from San Quentin, 200 miles.

45. YOLO COUNTY.

This is an agricultural and grazing county, situated on the west side of the Sacramento River, and contains about 100,000 acres of swamp land, which, when reclaimed, will be valuable on account of its fertility. It is expected that the building of the Marysville and Vallejo Railroad, which passes through this county, will reclaim the land adjacent to the route.

COUNTY SEAT—WASHINGTON.—Distance from Sacramento, 1 mile; from Stockton, 45 miles; from San Quentin, 100 miles.

46. YUBA COUNTY.

This county takes its name from the principal stream which flows through it, and is distinguished for its agricultural and commercial importance, as well as for its extensive mineral resources. The area of the county is about nine hundred square miles, of which more than one-half is excellent farming and grazing land. The rich placers on the head waters of the Yuba have not been exhausted by twelve years of vigorous mining, and are yet productive. Marysville, in population and commercial importance the second town in the interior, is situated at the confluence of the Yuba and Feather Rivers, at the head of navigation on the latter stream. It is a handsome town, substantially built of brick, and will not compare unfavorably with most New England towns of its size.

COUNTY SEAT—MARYSVILLE.—Legal distance from Sacramento, 50 miles; from Stockton, 95 miles; from San Quentin, 180 miles.

TENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. Samuel M. Bliss, Judge District Court: sessions, third Monday in January, April, July and October.

OREGON.

Oregon was organized as a Territory, May 2d, 1843; it was divided by the formation of Washington Territory in 1853, and on the twelfth of February, 1854, the State of Oregon, with its present limits, was admitted into the Union. It is bounded on the north and east by Washington, on the south by Nevada and California, and on the west by the Ocean. Its form is nearly regular, being about four hundred miles in length, from east to west, by two hundred and seventy-five miles in width, including an area of more than 100,000 square miles.

The State is divided into an eastern and western portion by the Cascade Range. Of the eastern portion, comprising more than two-thirds of its whole extent, but little is known, save that the face of the country is diversified with extensive ranges of mountains, large rivers, valleys and lakes, and contains wide tracts of land adapted for grazing and agricultural purposes, as yet untenanted by the white man.

The western portion is divided into three principal valleys—the Willamette, the Umpqua and the Rogue River—which abound in all the requisites for agricultural pre-eminence. Of these, the Willamette Valley is the most favored; possessing a soil of unsurpassed fertility, a mild and genial climate, an abundant growth of timber, large natural pastures where stock may range unsheltered the year round, an excellent commercial position, superior facilities for transportation, and a rapidly increasing population. With these advantages it will, when its vast resources are developed, contribute much towards the future agricultural importance of Oregon.

The compensation of the Members of the Legislative Assembly is three dollars per day for the first forty days of a regular session, or the first twenty days of an extra session, and mileage at the rate of three dollars for every twenty miles of travel to and from the Capital.

III. JUDICIARY.

The judicial power of the State is vested in a Supreme Court and four Circuit Courts. The Supreme Court consists of four Justices, (chosen in districts by the electors thereof) who are also Judges of the Circuit Court in their respective districts. Their term of office is six years.

DISTRICT ATTORNEYS.—There is one Prosecuting Attorney in each Judicial District, elected by the people for two years. In the Fourth District, however, the county of Wasco elects a separate District Attorney.

TERMS OF OFFICE.—The term of office of the County Judge is four years, and of the other county officers, two years. The terms of office of all the present county officers will expire on the first Monday of July, 1862.

The County Judge is ex officio Judge of the Court of Probate, and member of the Board of County Commissioners. The County Clerk is ex officio County Recorder.

1. BENTON COUNTY.

This county is situated in the upper part of the Willamette Valley, between the river and the coast, and covers an area of about 1,500 square miles. The soil of the Willamette Valley is not surpassed for agricultural purposes on the Pacific Coast. Fruit and grain are raised in large quantities and exported to California and abroad. The mountainous region of the Coast Range is well adapted for agricultural purposes, and contains some fine timber. Two small valleys, "Kings" and "Alka," exist in the western part of the county.

COUNTY SEAT—CORVALLIS.—Distance from Salem, 30 miles.

SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. R. E. Stratton, Judge Circuit Court; sessions, second Monday in April, and first Monday in September.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY.—R. B. Snelling, Esq., Eugene City.

2. CLACKAMAS COUNTY.

Clackamas County, situated in the northern part of the State, lies between the Willamette River and the summit of the Cascade Range. The great fertility of the valley land is not yet wholly available for agricultural purposes, owing to the heavy growth of timber. There are, however, in the western part, many large and productive fruit orchards. Indications of silver and lead exist in the mountains. The Willamette Falls, at Oregon City, furnish an unlimited water power for mill purposes, and several flouring and woolen mills are in operation.

COUNTY SEAT—OREGON CITY.—Distance from Salem, 40 miles.

FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. A. E. Wait, Judge Circuit Court; sessions, first Monday in March and September.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY.—W. W. Page, Esq., Portland.

SENATOR.—Hon. James K. Kelly, Oregon City, 1864.

3 CLATSOP COUNTY.

This county occupies the north-western corner of the State, and is situated on the harbor formed by the expansion of the Columbia River at its mouth. The northern part of the county is devoted mainly to stock raising, and the southern or mountainous portion is covered with a heavy growth of fir, spruce and hemlock. Astoria, situated on the Columbia, nine miles from the ocean, was founded by the American Fur Company and is one of the oldest ports on the coast. A military road one hundred miles in length connects it with the capital of the State.

COUNTY SEAT—ASTORIA.—Distance from Salem, 100 miles.

FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. A. E. Wait, Judge Circuit Court: sessions, second Tuesday in April and October.

4. COLUMBIA COUNTY.

This is one of the north-western counties of the State, and is situated on the Columbia River, from which it derives its name. The low land in the eastern part is fertile and well adapted for agricultural and grazing purposes, but the latter branch is the one to which the farming class have devoted most attention. The lumber trade of this county has given it a certain commercial importance, the Scappoose Mountains being heavily timbered with fir and cedar of the finest quality. The mineral resources are also considerable. Gold has been found in the Lewis River; indications of coal exist, and salt is manufactured from the salt springs at the base of the mountains. Area about six hundred and fifty square miles.

COUNTY SEAT—ST. HELENS.—Distance from Salem, 82 miles.

FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. E. A. Wait, Judge Circuit Court: sessions, third Tuesday in April and October.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY.—W. W. Page, Esq., Portland.

5. COOS COUNTY.

Coos county lies between the Coast Range and the ocean in the southern part of the State, and contains a fine body of land on the Coquille River well adapted for agricultural purposes. It is, however, but little improved as yet, and the timber with which the mountains are covered is not yet available from its inaccessibility to any market. Coal is obtained in the vicinity of Coos Bay and is an article of export. Beach mining is carried on to some extent on the coast, where the ocean currents throw up auriferous sand.

6. CURRY COUNTY.

This county is situated on the coast in the extreme south-western part of the State, and its interests are principally mining and lumbering. The face of the country is rugged and mountainous, and covered, for the most part, with excellent timber. There is some good grazing land, however, in the valley of Rogue River and along the coast. The beach mining on the shore of the ocean and the placers in several streams in this county are more or less productive.

12. MARION COUNTY.

This county occupies the heart of the Willamette Valley, and in point of population and agricultural wealth is second to no county in the State. Its area is about 2,500 square miles, and includes a large body of well timbered land at the base of the Cascades, and an extensive tract of the finest and best improved farming land on the Pacific Coast. The large and matured orchards in this section yield a superior quality of fruit, which bears an enviable reputation beyond the boundaries of the State, and is exported in large quantities. Salem, the capital of the State, is a flourishing town, pleasantly situated on the right bank of the Willamette, and contains a good school and some important manufacturing interests.

13. MULTNOMAH COUNTY.

Multnomah county, situated in the northern part of the State, is well timbered and possesses some fine land adapted for agricultural and grazing purposes. "Portland, in this county, is the largest and most commercial city in the State. It is situated on the left bank of the Willamette River, about 15 miles from its junction with the Columbia, and at the head of ship navigation. Steamboats ply regularly between Portland and all the principal places along the Columbia and Willamette Rivers, and the Ocean Mail and other steamers deliver all their freight for the upper country at this place. Population, 3,000."

15. TILLAMOOK COUNTY.

This county, situated on the western slope of the Coast Range, forms a long narrow strip, extending southward from Clatsop County, to which it is attached for judicial and representative purposes. "But a small section of this county has been settled, although many tracts of good, arable land may be found in the northern portion; the Indian Reserve embracing the southern and central lands."

16. UMPQUA COUNTY.

This county is situated on the sea coast, and derives its name from the principal river which drains it. The surface is mountainous, but the valleys, though narrow, possess a rich soil, and are well suited for agricultural purposes. The hills are more or less timbered, but there is much open country well adapted for sheep husbandry. A road through the Coast Range connects the port of Gardner City with Roseburg in the Umpqua Valley.

COUNTY SEAT—None established. Elkton is proposed. The present Court House is in Green Valley Precinct, near Oakland. Distance from Salem, 130 miles.

SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. R. E. Stratton, Judge Circuit Court; sessions, second Monday in October.

17. WASCO COUNTY.

Wasco county embraces the entire region lying east of the Cascade Range, though practically its limits are confined to the habitable portion bordering on the Columbia River. "It contains vast tracts of arable land well adapted for agricultural purposes. In 1860, the population of this county was 1,689, but it has greatly increased during the past year, in consequence of the rich mineral discoveries in the Nez Perces country and adjacent localities." The large valley of the Deschute River at the base of the Cascades forms an extensive range for stock. The Grand Ronde and Powder River valleys, in the eastern part, are also worthy of note. Numerous large lakes, in the southern part, intermingled with fertile valleys, form a remarkable feature. The Dalles contains about 2,000 inhabitants, and is a place of commercial importance.

COUNTY SEAT—DALLES.—Distance from Salem, 120 miles.

FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. A. E. Wait, Judge Circuit Court; sessions, fourth Tuesday in January, third Tuesday in May, and fourth Tuesday in September.

18. WASHINGTON COUNTY.

This county is situated in the north-western part of the State, and contains one of the finest tracts of land in Oregon, called the Tualatin Plains—a broad prairie of great fertility, intersected by the Tualatin River and its branches. There is a large quantity of good timber in this county, and an active lumber business is carried on. The hills in the western part are well adapted for grazing purposes, and are principally devoted to stock raising.

COUNTY SEAT.—HILLSBORO.—Distance from Salem 60 miles.

THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. R. P. Boise, Judge Circuit Court; sessions, third Monday in May and October.

19. YAMHILL COUNTY.

This county, bordering on the Willamette River, contains, in the vicinity of the Yamhill River and its branches, some of the best agricultural land in the State. Fruit and grain are exported in large quantities; and the Oregon apples from the Yamhill country are said to command the highest prices in the California market. The bridge spanning the river at Lafayette is the most costly structure of the kind in the State.

COUNTY SEAT.—LAFAYETTE.—Distance from Salem 25 miles.

THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—Hon. R. P. Boise, Judge Circuit Court; sessions, first Monday in May and fourth Monday in October.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Washington Territory was organized March 2d, 1853. It occupies the north-western portion of the domain of the United States, and is bounded north by the Straits of Fuca and British Columbia, east by the Rocky Mountains, south by Utah and Oregon, and west by Oregon and the Pacific Ocean. Like Oregon it is divided by the Cascades, but into very unequal portions. The most marked feature of the western part is Admiralty Inlet and its extension, Puget Sound—both popularly known by the latter name. Puget Sound penetrates nearly one hundred miles inland, and is full of fine harbors, navigable by the largest vessels afloat, presenting everywhere bold shores, that are safely approached for lading purposes, without the intervention of wharves. A large scope of country bordering on Puget Sound and extending southward is well adapted for agricultural and grazing purposes, and capable of sustaining a large population. Much of the same region is covered with an excellent quality of timber, which forms the basis of an extensive lumber business; furnishing employment to a large number of persons, and constituting an important article of commerce.

The eastern division of the Territory, comprising by far the larger portion, has attracted attention principally through its extensive gold fields. The Columbia River, which drains this entire region, is formed by the union of two main branches—the Snake River, flowing from the south, and the Upper Columbia or main branch, which takes its rise in the British Possessions. The Wenatchee, Okanagon, Kettle River and Colville mines are on the tributaries of the Upper Columbia; and the Nez Perces and Salmon River mines are on the eastern branches of Snake River, where recent prospecting has developed marvellous richness, surpassing anything that has been hitherto discovered north of California. There are indications that the entire western slope of the Rocky Mountains in this Territory abounds in auriferous wealth.

15. SHOSHONE COUNTY.

Shoshone county, the largest in the Territory, includes all that portion lying east of the State of Oregon and south of the Clearwater River. The Nez Perces and Salmon River mines are in this county, and are attracting a large and enterprising population, with the promise of an immense increase during the mining season of 1862.

Fort Hall is located on the Snake River, near its source in the south-eastern part of the county, and Fort Boise, on the same stream, in the western part. The Nez Perces Indians, a brave and intelligent tribe, who have learned to cultivate the soil, occupy a Reservation covering about 6,000 square miles, in the northern part, and the Shoshone or Snake Indians, from which the county derives its name, are a large and powerful tribe inhabiting the central and southern part.

Shoshone county is attached to Walla Walla county for judicial and representative purposes.

16. SKAMANIA COUNTY.

This is a very mountainous county, embracing within its limits the Cascade Range from the Columbia River to the northern boundary of the county. Mt. St. Helens, in the north-western part, is volcanic, and gives frequent evidences of the fires slumbering within.

NEVADA TERRITORY.

The Territory of Nevada was organized March 2d, 1861, from that portion of Utah lying west of the 116th degree of longitude. It is bounded north by Oregon and Washington, east by Utah, south by New Mexico and California, and west by California. The area of Nevada has been estimated at 46,000 square miles, making it equal in extent to the State of Pennsylvania, but it is at least one-third larger. It occupies the western portion of the Great Fremont Basin, an elevated plateau which is intersected and nearly surrounded by barren mountains, and whose streams either lose themselves in the thirsty sands, or, charged with alkali derived from the soil through which they flow, terminate in saline lakes that have no outlet.

A system of fertile valleys, however, extending along the base of the Sierras, renders the western portion of the Territory inhabitable and inviting. Of these, Carson Valley is the most populous, being the central region whence supplies are distributed to the extensive gold and silver mining districts of Washoe and Humboldt on the north, Walker's River and Lake on the east, and Esmeralda and Mono on the south. Of the mineral resources of Nevada, language cannot exaggerate the importance. The Comstock Lead, at Virginia City, is perhaps the richest vein of silver now being worked on the globe. The existence of numerous other silver lodes, only less remarkable, and a net work of gold-bearing quartz veins ramifying through all the region thus far prospected, together with new and valuable discoveries constantly being made, prove that Nevada is destined to fill an important place in the future history of the Pacific Coast. In order to participate in its grand destiny, an energetic population is thronging to its borders and filling up its valleys, and unlimited capital is seeking investment in the developement of its vast mineral resources.
